Stanford School of Medicine seeks a board certified physician with extensive knowledge and leadership in physician well-being to help lead a statewide strategic partnership between the WellMD Center and key stakeholders. The position will have a significant role in implementing and evaluating multiple high-level projects as part of a population health approach to improve physician wellness.

The faculty position is in the Clinician Educator line within the appropriate department. The major criterion for appointment, reappointment and promotion for Clinician Educators is excellence in the overall mix of clinical care and clinical teaching appropriate to the programmatic need the individual is expected to fulfill. Faculty rank will be determined by the qualifications and experience of the successful candidate.

The successful applicant should have Doctor of Medicine degree and should be trained and board certified in their designated specialty. Candidates should have a minimum of 2 years clinical experience required with continued commitment to practice approximately 30% of the time.

The ideal candidate will have a minimum of 2 years of leadership experience in the field of physician well-being, professional fulfillment, and burnout including previous research in the field. We are particularly interested in candidates who have an understanding of diverse clinical practices including academic medical centers, as well as rural and community based practices. We desire a candidate who has experience creating programs or initiatives to serve physicians; as well as designing and developing training curriculum, including development of materials and CME-eligible content. We expect the candidate to have experience influencing senior management in large organizations; as well as proven presentation skills in a variety of settings and audiences, including healthcare leaders, large audiences, and groups of physicians. Candidates should have demonstrated ability to handle ambiguity and adapt effectively to changing circumstances; ability to work flexibly in a changing, fast-paced environment with multiple stakeholders.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford also welcomes applications from others who bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching, and clinical missions.

Submit CV and a brief letter of interest Dr. Tait Shanafelt, Chief Wellness Officer, at wellmdcenter@stanford.edu.
