

Professor
Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology
Department of Medicine

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women and members of minority groups, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.

The Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology in the Department of Medicine at Stanford University seeks a board-certified gastroenterologist with a focus on inflammatory bowel disease to join the Division as a Professor in the University Tenure Line or Medical Center Line. The Department expects to nominate the successful candidate for additional appointment to an endowed professorship.

The predominant criterion for appointment in the University Tenure Line is a major commitment to research and teaching. The major criteria for appointment for faculty in the Medical Center Line shall be excellence in the overall mix of clinical care, clinical teaching, scholarly activity that advances clinical medicine, and institutional service appropriate to the programmatic need the individual is expected to fulfill.

The successful applicant should be a leader in the field of inflammatory bowel disease and related research, have an MD or MD/PhD, be board certified in gastroenterology, and possess or be able to obtain a California medical license.

We expect the successful candidate to establish and lead an investigative program in inflammatory bowel disease (IBD), with the focus of research being bench, clinical/translation, genetic or epidemiological. He or she will provide guidance and coordination to link diverse elements on the campus in a unified IBD program, and also serve as the major liaison between the research and clinical communities in IBD at Stanford.

The position requires leadership and participation in innovative multi-disciplinary translational research programs as well as active involvement with the educational mission of the Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology. The successful candidate will also be expected to build a successful tertiary-level clinical practice alongside colleagues in Surgery and other specialties.

Interested applicants should submit a CV, a brief letter outlining their interest and the names of three references to:
