

Clinician Educator – Gastrointestinal motility and endoscopy
Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology
Department of Medicine

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women, members of minority groups, protected veterans and individuals with disabilities, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.

The Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology in the Department of Medicine at Stanford University is actively recruiting outstanding Gastroenterologists to join our team in the Clinician Educator Line. This is an opportunity to join leading physicians in an academic medical setting that focuses on excellence of care, research and academic growth. As a member of this growing team you will have the opportunity to combine your clinical practice skills with teaching and clinical research. The ideal candidate will have comprehensive skills in gastrointestinal motility and endoscopy, as well as an interest in taking an active role in the education of gastroenterology and subspecialty fellows, medicine residents and medical students. The ideal candidate must be Board Eligible/Board Certified in Gastroenterology. The candidate must possess a California medical license at the time of the appointment.

Interested applicants should submit a CV, a brief letter outlining their interest and the names of three references to:

W. Ray Kim, M.D.
Chief, Division of Gastroenterology & Hepatology
Stanford University
Alway Building, Room M211
300 Pasteur Drive
Stanford, CA 94305-5187

or via email c/o Susan Lydick at lydicks@stanford.edu