

Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, Professor
Division of Immunology and Rheumatology
Department of Medicine

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women and members of minority groups, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.

The Division of Immunology and Rheumatology and Department of Medicine at Stanford University are seeking a board certified Rheumatologist/clinical investigator at the rank of Assistant Professor, Associate Professor or full Professor with clinical and research expertise and interest in one or more of the following areas: Health outcomes, Epidemiology, Health economics/Health Policy, Bioinformatics, Pharmacogenomics, Clinical trials, or patient oriented translational research in autoimmune disease or arthritis. The position will be in the Medical Center Line, with the expectation that time will be split among clinical, research and teaching activities.

The major criteria for appointment for faculty in the Medical Center Line shall be excellence in the overall mix of clinical care, clinical teaching, scholarly activity that advances clinical medicine, and institutional service appropriate to the programmatic need the individual is expected to fulfill. Faculty rank will be determined by the qualifications and experience of the successful candidate.

The successful candidate will be expected to have outstanding clinical and teaching skills. The candidate is required to contribute to the clinical programs, and either have an established track record of funded research or have demonstrated the ability or shown the potential to obtain peer-reviewed research funding relevant to diverse areas within Rheumatology. The candidate must hold an MD and be board eligible or board certified in Rheumatology, possess or be able to obtain a California medical license, and be qualified for appointment to a faculty position at Stanford University.

Interested candidates should submit a copy of their curriculum vitae, a brief letter outlining their interests and the names of three references (who will not be contacted without prior consent) to Dr. Mark Genovese, Search Committee Chair at: <http://facultyapplication.stanford.edu>

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women, members of minority groups, protected veterans and individuals with disabilities, as well as from others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.