

Dear Colleagues,

Thank you for reading the inaugural medicine residency research newsletter! This new initiative is an effort to both highlight exciting projects involving our current housestaff and recent graduates (to recognize you in the program for your achievements) but also inform trainees about the types of investigation being performed at Stanford. We define research loosely, as quality improvement, global health, outcomes research, medical education, clinical investigation, translational research, implementation science, qualitative studies, clinical trials, and device/service innovation all count. This newsletter will also announce courses or resources available to our residents on campus. Without further ado:

Papers, Presentations, Publicity:

Congratulations to the following authors for their recent publications in the past quarter:

Note: This list of publications was generated via PubMed search including only first-author publications of residents and 2016 graduates published in the past academic quarter. In the future, it will include co-authored articles (second-, third-author, etc.), presentations at local or national conferences, patents, QI projects, and other achievements.

Methods, Materials, Mentors:

- Please see <http://lane.stanford.edu/classes-consult/laneclasses.html> for a list of upcoming summer research courses offered by Lane Library. Many of these courses are incredibly helpful, including advanced PubMed use, Data Visualization, SQL, Systematic Review Methodology, MATLAB, Introduction to R, and EndNote/Zotero/Mendeley among many others. Highly recommended!
- Dr. Steve Luby, Director of Research for Stanford's Center for Innovation in Global Health offers an outstanding two-day intensive global health methods retreat for residents of all disciplines. This is an exceptional opportunity for small-group mentorship, and will take place October 25 and November 1 this year. Find out more and register at <http://globalhealth.stanford.edu/research/research-methods-retreat.html>
- Please see <http://nationalcsp.org/> for information on the new National Clinician Scholars Program that models itself on the current RWJF Clinical Scholars program. The training program is based around health services research and leadership training, with application deadline of August 15, 2016.

Speeches, Seminars, Sessions:

- SEPI: Bridging the Divide: Stanford's New Community Advisory Board for Clinical Research (July 27 at LKSC 130) – See (<http://med.stanford.edu/seminars/eventDetails.do?semid=119556> and <https://goo.gl/loSTSu> to sign up) for more information.

If you have academic or innovation activities that you'd like to have highlighted in the newsletter (or know of work other residents or recent graduates have taken part in) please e-mail us at chiefsmed@lists.stanford.edu. These include publications of any authorship status (first, second, third, etc.), presentations, QI projects, patents, etc. If your research was not recognized this edition, please e-mail us, so we can include it next time. Also, feel free to send us any interesting courses, lectures, or resources you find out about on campus. If you are interested in helping out with the research interest peer group or the newsletter, please contact us at the e-mail address listed above. Thanks for reading!

Best,
Stanford Internal Medicine Research Interest Peer Group Steering Committee

If you have research you'd like to have highlighted in the newsletter (or know of work other residents or recent graduates have taken part in) please make sure to email us at chiefsmed@lists.stanford.edu.
