

Esophageal – Clinical Educator Line
Assistant/Associate/Professor

The Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology at Stanford University is actively recruiting outstanding Gastroenterologists with advanced training or experience in the area of Esophagus to join our team of leading physicians in an academic medical setting that focuses on excellence of care, research, and academic growth.

As a member of the Clinical Educator line, you will have the opportunity to combine your clinical practice skills with teaching and clinical research. The ideal candidate will have comprehensive skills esophageal procedures and standards of care, as well as an interest in taking an active role in the education of Advanced Esophageal Trainees, ACGME gastroenterology fellows, medicine residents and medical students.

Clinical responsibilities will include responsibilities in outpatient clinical care at the Stanford Health Care Digestive Health Center in Redwood City, inpatient service/call at Stanford Hospital in Palo Alto.

Applicants will have demonstrated excellent qualifications in education, research, and clinical care. Selected candidates will join a highly interactive and exciting multidisciplinary academic and clinical environment at Stanford University School of Medicine as an integral member of the Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology and will have opportunities to teach advanced procedures with the Esophageal Fellowship program, teach our ACGME fellows and internal medicine residences at the Stanford School of Medicine. Rank will be commensurate with experience and salary is competitive and based on years of experience in rank. All Clinical Educators in the Division are eligible to participate in an excellent incentive program as part of their total compensation package.

All candidates must be Board Certified in Gastroenterology and completed an Esophageal fellowship program or have the equivalent experience and reputation. Final applicants must possess a California medical license at the time of the appointment.

Applicants should send their curriculum vitae, a brief letter outlining their interests, and the names and addresses of at least three potential referees to W. Ray Kim, MD, Chief Division of Gastroenterology & Hepatology, via email to our Administrative Associate, Bobby Esquivel, ebobby21@stanford.edu. Any referrals would also be appreciated.

The expected base pay range for this position is:

Gastroenterology

Assistant Professor - $285,000 - $321,000

Associate Professor - $336,000 - $357,000

Professor - $376,000 - $443,000

This pay range reflects base pay, which is based on faculty rank and years in rank. It may not include all components of faculty compensation or pay from participation in departmental incentive compensation programs. For more information about compensation and our wide-range of benefits including housing assistance, please contact the hiring department.

Stanford University has provided a pay range representing its good faith estimate of what the university reasonably expects to pay for the position. The pay offered to the selected candidate will be determined based on factors including (but not limited to) the experience and qualifications of the selected candidate including equivalent years in rank, training, and field or discipline; internal equity; and external market pay for comparable jobs.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford also welcomes applications from others who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching and clinical missions.